Issue/Request:

An amendment to an engineering contract for the removal of an underground fuel storage tank.

Key Issues:

- The underground diesel storage tank at 620 NE Douglas Road has been removed and new above ground tank has been installed.
- The product lines have not yet been abandoned.
- The project was delayed by a number of items including an initial high bid which resulted in the bid being rejected and the project then being sub-contracted and managed by staff, which resulted in significant savings.
- The project was delayed in part due to the pandemic while the site was being used by the Fire Department for CoVID testing.

- The project was delayed in part while the Police Dept occupied the facility during the remodel of Police headquarters.
- The cost of the underground tank disposal increased from the time of the original contract.
- Further review of the site remediation plan determined that collecting the necessary soil samples by use of a probe would be less expensive than excavating the entire length of the product lines to collect the soil samples.
- The cost increase in this contract is to cover the costs incurred due to delay and the change in the sampling and abandonment technique.
- The overall project cost will be lowered by sampling in this fashion because it will eliminate the need to repave the area that would have been disturbed by excavation.
